Blind Bridesmaids for Miss Holt at Wedding Thursday

Popular Dowry of $500,000 to Go to Aid Sightless French Veterans.

The marriage of Miss Winifred Holt, famous for her work among the blind, to Mr. Rufus Graves Mather, which will take place in the auditorium of the Lighthouse, the home for the blind, founded by Miss Holt, next Thursday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, will bring to mind much of Miss Holt's work for the sightless.

The ceremony will give impetus, Miss Holt's friends said yesterday, to a popular wedding dowry of $500,000 to be used for the benefit of the blind war veterans of France. President Harding is acting as patron for the dowry. The fund will be used to save the Paris Lighthouse established during the war by Miss Holt. The dowry was increased by a $50,000 gift made anonymously yesterday. Mr. Mather added checks for $2,500 and $1,000.

A reception will follow the ceremony in the auditorium. Henry Holt, now 83, will come from Burlington, Vt., to give his daughter away. The ceremony will be performed by Bishop Manning, assisted by the Rev. Raymond C. Knox, chaplain of Columbia. Prof. Jewett Mather of Princeton, a brother of the bridegroom, will be best man. The other bridesmaids are blind. They are Misses Grace Keator, former secretary to Miss Holt, and who has taken dictation from President Harding and other notable men; Teresa de France, who was trained by Miss Holt; Misses Grace Keator, former secretary to Miss Holt, and who has taken dictation from President Harding and other notable men; Teresa de France, who was trained by Miss Holt; Misses Grace Keator, former secretary to Miss Holt, and who has taken dictation from President Harding and other notable men; Teresa de France, who was trained by Miss Holt.

Chester W. Chapin, Railroad and Ship Owner, Dies at 80

Inherited Fortune From His Father and Was Active in Business Since 1853.

Chester W. Chapin, 80, who inherited a fortune from his father in 1883 and later built up large railroad and steamship enterprises, died yesterday in his home, 331 West End avenue. Twenty years ago Mr. Chapin was active as a horseman and a yachtsman, besides being interested in many business enterprises, but for more than fifteen years he had been practically retired.

The elder Chester W. Chapin's fortune was built up in much the same manner as that of Commodore Vanderbilt. He began with a stage line between Hartford and Brattleboro, and when railroads and steamships came he turned to them. He built up the New Haven Steamship line and the Connecticut and Western railroads, and when he died the bulk of these properties went to his son. The younger Chapin entered business with his father in 1883 after he had finished his schooling in Europe.

During the civil war, because of his knowledge of transportation problems, Mr. Chapin, Jr., received the task of shipping troops from Alexandria to Fort Monroe. After the war he made his home in New York for many years at 34 West Fifty-seventh street. He was president of the New Haven Steamship Company until he sold out the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad. He also was president of the Connecticut Railroad, which afterward became a part of the Boston and Albany lines.

Mr. Chapin was first married soon after the civil war to a young widow who had three children. She obtained a divorce, and Mr. Chapin in 1906 married his cousin, Miss Elizabeth J. Chapin of Chicago. He had two daughters by his first marriage. The older, Miss Julia J. Chapin, was married to the Marquis de Villard. She married him in 1909 and later married Joseph Baker Bourne. She is now the wife of Benoni Lockwood of Quito, Ecuador. The younger daughter, Miss Pauline A. Chapin, is the wife of Arthur Hodges of London.

Mr. Chapin was a descendant of Deacon Samuel Chapin, whose statue by Carl Gudmundsen is "The Puritan," is well known.

Mr. Chapin formerly drove a fine team of horses in this city and was a leader in all horse shows and similar events. He also hunted much in the Rocky Mountains and on the plains. He was a licensed navigator and gave substantial support to yachting. He was one of the best of the city's cup defender Vigilant. His own yacht, the Yampa, under his command, established a sailing record between New York and San Francisco, which is believed to remain unbroken.

After the war Mr. and Mrs. Chapin gave the use of their 2,000 acre farm near the town of Putnam, Putnam county, for use as a convalescent camp for wounded soldiers and sailors. Several hundred veterans stayed there for months.

Mr. Chapin was a member of the New York Yacht Club, the Metropolitan Club, and the Aero Club of America.
